

Revista Uruguaya de Psicoanálisis

Guidelines for authors

Articles published in the Revista Uruguaya de Psicoanálisis (RUP) must meet the following requirements:

- they must deal with a psychoanalytic subject or be of special interest for psychoanalysis;
- they must be original articles, unpublished in Spanish, and will be sent for anonymous peer review by the Reading Committee and external reviewers.

1. Submitting the articles.

Two files should be sent to the following address: revistauruguayapsi@gmail.com.

The first one should include the full article with its title and a pseudonym of the author.

The second one should include, apart from the full article, information about the author: full name, academic qualification, institution, society or study group and electronic address.

Text: the paper should not exceed 42.000characters, bibliography included, in Times Roman 12.

Abstract: both in Spanish and in English, not exceeding 950 characters.

When submitting his paper, the author must sign an authorization form by means of which:

- a. he/she grants free and not exclusive rights for public communication, reproduction, edition, distribution and any other action which can be necessary for the publication of the article in the RUP and/or on the web on paper or electronic format under Creative Commons licensing, in its Non-Commercial Share Alike mode, which implies that the article cannot be modified or used with a commercial purpose;
- b. he/she states and guarantees that the article has not been simultaneously sent to another publication; that the rights have not been granted in an exclusive form before and that the publication in the RUP will not violate or infringe any rights of third parties;
- c. he/she assumes full responsibility for the authorship of the article submitted for publication.

2. Format and style

Quotations

Quotations included in the article should be followed by information on: author, year of publication and number of the page, between brackets. Information on the edition of the text quoted will be included in the bibliography.

Footnotes will be reserved for comments by the writer, keeping them as indispensable and brief as possible.

Bibliography

Bibliography should be included at the end of the article. It will only include the texts used and mainly those mentioned in the article, in alphabetical order. Work by the same author will be included in chronological order, adding the letters a,b,c, in the case of work published in the same year.

If an author is cited more than once in the bibliography, his name will not be repeated. A dash will be included instead, followed by full information on the book or article.
